

TANKS REPEL TWO NAZI JABS

Hold Central Tunisia Area Against Drives

Dig In on Rocky Ridges Commanding Ousseltia Valley as British Big Guns Pound Nazis In Mareth Fortifications.

LONDON—(UP)—CBS said in a broadcast from Allied headquarters in North Africa today that Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, former British Middle East commander, has taken over command of all ground forces in Tunisia.

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA—American forces dug in on the rocky ridges forming a new line in central Tunisia today and, with the help of strong British units, repelled two enemy thrusts designed to test the strength of the Allied positions.

The lines appeared to be stabilized in a fairly firm position as Gen. Harold R. L. G. Alexander, former British commander for the Middle East, arrived here to assume his new duties as deputy to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in charge of Allied ground forces in Tunisia.

Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps was faced by the threat of the British Eighth army, whose big guns were pounding the Mareth line in southern Tunisia.

The first of the two German thrusts was made against a pass north of Kasserine held by the Americans. The enemy succeeded in forcing his way a short distance into the pass, but the Americans counter-attacked and drove the Axis out and by 9 p. m. Thursday the situation was restored.

Further north, British guards encountered a strong German patrol in the Shiba area. The patrol consisted of tanks and motorized infantry. The British succeeded in knocking out six tanks and six self-propelled guns.

Meanwhile, the Allies abandoned the Ousseltia valley in a line-straightening operation. The Americans had been holding the lower slopes of hills forming the eastern boundary of the valley.

The Americans' new position commands the valley.

Reports to headquarters from observers in position to watch the entire development of the recent battle said that the Germans succeeded in making a surprise attack the first day and overrunning several American positions after stubborn resistance.

(DNB, official German news agency, broadcast a report today that 3,000 prisoners, mostly Americans, have been captured in Tunisia.)

British Continue To Bombard Mareth Line

CAIRO—(INS)—The British Eighth army continued its bombardment of the Mareth line throughout Friday, a Middle East command communiqué announced today, as advance units clashed with the enemy at the north end.

CITY TAKES IT EASY ON EVE OF 'FREEZE'

Only Normal Buying of Canned Goods Reported In Stores As Rationing Nears.

MIDNIGHT'S DEADLINE

Mansfield and Nation to Sign Up For Ration Book 2 Next Week.

Mansfield consumers, apparently mindful of the government's admonition against hoarding, appeared to be buying groceries normally today, the last day for unrestricted purchases of some 200 varieties of canned fruits and vegetables for the duration of the war.

Sale of such foods, along with frozen and dried fruits and vegetables, will be halted at midnight tonight and will remain "frozen" until March 1, when the rationing period begins.

Mansfielders will register for "point ration" books at the schools in their districts from 1:30 to 5 p. m. and 6:30 to 9 p. m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, and on Friday from 1:30 to 5 p. m. only. County schools will hold their registration on Thursday and Friday between the hours of 8 a. m. and 9 p. m. except Shelby, Spilch and Plymouth.

Shelby's registration, at the high school, will be from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Residents in the districts of the Shiloh and Plymouth schools will register at the schools between 6:30 p. m. and 9 p. m. on Wednesday and from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Friday.

Registrants must bring war ration book one with them when they are registered and have been asked by ration authorities to also have filled out in advance the "consumer's declaration" form, a copy of which was published Wednesday in The News-Journal, and which will appear again in tomorrow's paper. Ration officials emphasized the advantage of using this form, since they fear that the supply they will have at the school rationing stations will not be sufficient.

In Washington, the OPA said it had no objection to housewives buying enough canned goods to last them through the "freeze" period, but warned against over-buying, since stored canned goods must be declared and points deducted from the new books at the time of issuance.

Serious food rationing—the first in American history—is starting to hit its stride.

Sugar and coffee already are doled out on coupons. Tonight unrestricted sale of canned fruits and vegetables stops. On about March 28 meat rationing will start. Rationing of butter and other edible fats, of canned milk, and other parts are on the way. Canned meat and canned fish, sale of which was stopped Wednesday night, will be rationed along with fresh meat.

TIME CONFUSION STARTS SUNDAY

Mansfield Goes on War Time, Most Ruralites Turn Clocks Back at 3 A. M.

While Mansfield will continue operating on Eastern War time some confusion is anticipated in relations with rural residents who generally will conform to the newly enacted state law setting timepieces back one hour to Eastern Standard time at 3 a. m. Sunday.

With city council and the Richland county commissioners voting to continue war or fast time for official functions, industries, mercantile establishments, offices and schools have elected to retain war time to avoid confusion with railroad, bus lines and all federal agencies which long have been instructed to pursue the earlier clock time specified by congress as a war measure.

State agencies in Mansfield and Richland county have been advised from Columbus they must abide by the slow time law which was signed last Wednesday by Gov. John W. Bricker despite a flood of protests from nearly all of Ohio's population and war in (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

Red Cross Meets Quota Again on Blood Donations

Mansfield and Richland county more than met its February blood donor quota in the two days the Cleveland mobile unit was stationed at First Presbyterian church.

With 140 pints sought each day, yesterday's receipts totaled 150 pints while one extra pint was donated on the first day.

Red Cross officials are already starting registration of donors for March 18 and 19, when the unit will again be in the city.

It was learned that Miss Jean Bryant, 256 1/2 Park avenue east, contributed her fourth blood donation during the unit's visit to Mansfield yesterday. Red Cross officials refused to make known names of other donors who had contributed more than once.

Washington Warfare on Sunday Bill

By way of observing Washington's birthday the Sunday edition brings you tomorrow a series of pictures showing that modern warfare follows many of the tactics used by the first American general in his campaigns.

And there's a story about the menu used at the old Vonhof hotel in Mansfield on Washington's birthday a half century ago.

Camera and reporter take you through the Richland County Tuberculosis sanatorium and summarize the annual report of progress at the institution.

Among the Mansfielders you will meet are the girls who will dance in a minstrel show for Naval Flying cadets, two five-year-old violinists who will appear in their first recital, and a very lovely young lady who has been named queen of the air base at Lincoln, Neb.

Especially for country readers, there's a summary of commencement plans in schools outside of Mansfield. For music lovers, there's a resume of the annual week of opera in Cleveland. And for merchants and housewives, there's a story about a new movement originated in Mansfield to conserve items now out of production because of the war.

INDIAN LEADERS PETITION FOR HIS RELEASE BY BRITISH.

POONA, India—(AP)—Frail 73-year-old Mahatma Gandhi, with ten days of fasting still ahead of him, requested 21-day ordeal has grown so weak and caused so many "alarms" reports that a committee of prominent Indians petitioned the viceroy last night for his immediate release.

The leaders represented wide differences of political opinion.

A government communiqué issued today at Bombay said Gandhi's condition had changed considerably for the worse and was regarded as grave.

Friends said Gandhi smiled, but made no comment when he was told of three Indians resigning from the viceroy's executive council. Dr. B. C. Roy, one of India's best known physicians, said yesterday "it will be a miracle if Gandhi survives the three-weeks fast at his age."

11 JAPS HELD FOR RIOTING

Charged with Inciting Dec. 6 Disturbance.

MANZANAR, Cal. (AP)—Authorities today held 11 Japanese suspected of causing the riots Dec. 6 at the Manzanar relocation center in which one man was killed and nine injured.

The 11 men arrested yesterday were in addition to 16 others who were removed from the camp some time ago and transferred to a camp at Moab, Utah.

Ralph Brown, assistant project director, said the arrests were an outgrowth of the riots in which unruly elements representing a minority of the 10,000 citizens and alien Japanese at the camp led a mob which threatened officials and property after beating loyal Japanese.

OFFICES CLOSE

City Hall, Courthouse, Banks, Others, Observe Holiday.

Mansfield will observe the second February holiday marking a great American's birthday Monday when most public offices and banks will close for Washington's birthday.

All the city's banks, postoffice, city hall, courthouse, and most state offices will be closed during the day. Secretary Fred Lingg, letter of the garbage, sewer, and waterworks finance officer, said, however, that skeleton forces will be on the job to accommodate subscribers who want to pay garbage bills.

The city's holiday gift to Mansfield area motorists will be free use of the parking meters on downtown streets.

The U. S. employment office will remain open all day for the convenience of job-seekers and prospective employers.

Mansfield schools will be dismissed Monday in observance of the 21th anniversary of the birth of the "Father of Our Country."

IN THE CAPITAL--

WASHINGTON—When we are tempted by defeatist despair about whether we can make this victory stick, we might take heart from the way our three major allies refused to give up when the fighting went against them.

Defeatism about the peace is growing to a disturbing degree in this country. An indication is the vote of the house against allowing the national resources planning board to prepare postwar plans that would stimulate industry and provide jobs for returning soldiers. It is to be hoped that committees of congress, in their own planning activities, will not take such a defeatist attitude toward the job. We might better take heart from the struggles that our allies have made against odds that looked to others almost hopeless.

Clapper

We can particularly take inspiration from the struggle that China has made under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. Free China is a shadow of the old China. A third of the country has been overrun by the Japs. It is completely blockaded except by air. Seventy-five per cent of China's industry was caught in Japanese occupation, and her big ports, her financial centers, her textile centers, and the best of her transportation system.

Free China consists of the material leftovers and the spiritual capital of the Chinese people. She tries to continue a modern industrial war on a pig-iron production of 100,000 tons, when all industrial nations must count it in millions—ours being some 60 million.

But is China trying to find some way to make a deal with the Japs and give up because it is hard? Instead, Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek is here

FAIR ENOUGH--

WASHINGTON—This is going to be something distinctly on the scholarly side, a dignified discussion of the rebellion in the house ways and means committee against a decree, issued by the president, attempting to impose a limit of $25,000 on American incomes which was first proposed in the Communist party platform of 1928 as one item in the Communist program to abolish capitalism in the United States and substitute the one-party system and dictatorship.

I think we all understand that congress flatly refused to give Mr. Roosevelt authority to set this limitation and that he just went ahead and did it anyway by executive order, or, as they say in Europe, decree, and that his order did not limit the incomes of millionaires, hereditary or self-made, derived from their estates or investments, but just earned incomes.

The president explained that he would have liked to tax the income of the coupon-clippers but lacked the authority to do so which is the laugh-line of the season on the bill because he had as much authority to do that as he had to limit earned incomes, or precisely none whatever.

This income congress really, sure and you may remember that the next time Mr. Roosevelt asked for blanket authority, a request for power to suspend the immigration laws, congress told him nothing doing.

Well, in the house they were so sore about this income limitation thing, not because of the figure especially, but because of the way it was done. That they are now usurping the legislative power back to themselves and you will presently be seeing some legislation, none very drastic, but just contrary enough to mark the change, in conflict with the administration's labor policy, so called.

To how the story down to essentials, the president felt called upon the other day to explain very politely to the ways and means committee what

ON BROADWAY--

(A compendium of facts that can't be told with names, because they're too true to print. If you find in them any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead—you've probably guessed right.)

FOR THE RECORDS Let's call this here Al. His real name is a household word now, but just a few years ago he was nobody at all. Bandleaders thought he was a fine musician and there were plenty of jobs for him at scale wages, but the public had never heard of him.

During this period he met Claire, who loved him enough to give up her job in the chorus and struggle along with him. It was Claire who made him organize a band of his own, and accept engagements that ordinarily he would have scoffed at.

Soon the little utterings who make bandleaders famous began to take notice of Al. They decided to become his fans. Before long they had catapulted him right into the big time and the big money.

While this was going on Al and Claire had lost interest in each other. In a friendly way but just the same the marriage was definitely over. The only thing that delayed the divorce was the fact that by now they had three children they decided that so long as neither of them had other romantic interests, they'd stay together.

The arrangement worked beautifully until Al met a beautiful young actress. He told Claire about it, and she understood perfectly when he suggested that she go to Reno as soon as she could manage to get away, so he and Claire could marry. He assured Claire that he'd always be well provided for because he was turning over a percentage of his band to her.

The papers were signed but before Claire could get on the train to Reno, Al had lost interest in trying to charm us into giving China more to fight with.

We have also the great victories of Russia. An American back from there recently says it is partly a victory of psychology that the Russians could drive back the German army after having lost so much in men, equipment, production and food during the two and a half years that the German invasion has continued. Perhaps it isn't the one who has the last ounce of strength that wins but the one who has the extra grunt of spirit.

Is there a better example than the England of 1940, when plans were being made to send the British fleet over to this side and carry on the war from Canada if necessary? But Churchill, unlike the French, was determined to play it out and hope for a break. That was when he was saying they would fight on the beaches and in the streets and would never surrender.

This time peace is going to take the same qualities that the war demands. Peace will not be the opposite of war but a continuation of it. Peace this time must consist of disarming the enemy, of keeping him disarmed and our side armed. The Allies must stick together after the fighting or they will be defeated one by one as they almost were in the war. Peace will require the same aggressive, confident, realistic collaboration that has meant the self-preservation of each of us in this war.

It is no more possible to have a peace without friction and disagreements than it is to fight a coalition war without them. But we don't give up the war and lose it just because Russia and China, for instance, might have different ideas about how the war ought to be fought. We don't give up the war just because each nation is looking out for itself.

By Westbrook Pegler

he had done so arbitrarily. In this explanation he spoke of a hypothetical corporation president engaged in war production getting $500,000 a year in pay and bonuses, which he believed to constitute a gross inequity in relation to the wage earners on the same job whose pay was supposed to have been frozen but need not necessarily be.

For one thing, any such income of half-a-million a year will be taxed way down anyway by the regular tax schedules and, for another, the president's decree would have reduced the big executive's pay while the workers' pay would not have been reduced but just frozen at an unusually high level or perhaps, not frozen at all.

For another thing, the limitation was not imposed only on the high pay and bonuses and the like of executives engaged in war industry. It also put the same limit on salaries of men having nothing to do with war industry, but on the basis of their ability and worth in a fair competitive market long before Pearl Harbor.

Such individuals are not war profiteers but they were to be treated the same as war profiteers in fulfillment of a communistic proposal.

And then also, in speaking of inequities between the big earner and the little one and the necessity to adjust them Mr. Roosevelt opened a subject that could be argued forever and never come to any fix except by arbitrary decision because inequities are not necessarily wrong and exist in every office in Washington and even in the army where if the same limitation were adopted in principle nobody ever could rise above the rank of corporal. Last there occur a gross inequity between him and those below.

Pretty bad, too, was the gimmick in the decree permitting adjustments and favors to individuals who could show that they would suffer "undue hardship" in curtailing their income to the $25,000 figure.

Well, the ways and means committee finally said no and positively, too, and there it stands and at the present writing the president is not commanding congress any more but asking, nice as can be.

Francine, leaving her with the biggest torch that ever illuminated Broadway. (That's another story in itself.) So Al and Claire just stayed married, and he became more and more famous, and more and more inclined to add chorus girls' hearts (usually broken) to his belt, like scalp.

Well, a short time after Pearl Harbor, Claire decided this time had come for her to get the divorce this time and wanted to marry him. When she told Al of her plans, Al told her managers, and they let her tell the public. They figured it out that if Claire had a new husband, that would automatically dispose of Al's dependents. (He's still in his twenties.)

Francine, they held a conference with Claire. They pointed out that by now her percentage of the band was reaping her $1,000 a week, but if Al were drafted she'd receive only a government allotment for her children and of course, her new husband would have to support her on his salary, which was meager when you'd been accustomed to Al's.

Francine made that point clear they mentioned that other couples had separated and then discovered they really loved each other, and reconciled. Why couldn't Al and Claire do the same? After the war they could get a divorce and go their merry ways.

Well, Claire is a sensible girl, and $1,000 a week isn't in, or out, or anything to be sneezed at. So we may suppose the other week when they read that Al and Claire had ironed out their differences and had reconciled after a two-year rift.

I wasn't.

(But you can't print that. After all, those kids fighting in Guadalcanal and in North Africa don't get much relaxation, and one of their few pleasures is tuning in on the short wave and listening to Al's music, which they love. They'd be awfully disillusioned if they knew that Al could be fighting with them, if he didn't prefer to hide behind his babies' huntings.)

CONGRESS GETS COMPROMISE ON FARM WORKERS

Measure, Reported Approved By FDR, Provides For Soldier Assistance.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The ground work for a possible compromise of the farm labor problem lay before congress today.

Chairman Hampton P. Fulmer, D., S. C., of the house agriculture committee said President Roosevelt had endorsed the principle of pending legislation providing for detaching troops in an emergency to help plant, cultivate and harvest crops when civilian help is unavailable.

A bill introduced by Fulmer embodies those principles. Such legislation would meet—in part—the opposing positions taken by farm leaders and military authorities on the farm labor problem.

Farm leaders are insisting that the demand for food and fibers to feed and clothe the armed forces, civilian population and Allies cannot be met without the help of farm labor already in the services. Military leaders have insisted, in hearings before several congressional committees investigating the problem, that their manpower demands cannot be reduced below the goal of approximately 11,000,000 by the end of this year and that they can't interrupt training schedules and still put an adequate army in the field.

Fulmer said the president opposed his plan until he explained that it would take a soldier away from his military training only one day at a time and then only on certification by the county agriculture agent that it was a genuine emergency imperiling the crop in question.

"I explained to him that we could take 200 one day and then if there still was more work to do we could take a different group the next day," Fulmer said. "The president said that could be done satisfactorily so long as we wouldn't take them away from camp for a long time."

Fulmer's bill provides that the county agriculture agent should notify the commanding officer of the nearest military or naval post, stating the number of men needed and approximate time required, and the commanding officer shall detail the men to do the job.

Soldier details to the work receive their regular army wage and the farmer receiving such help would pay the treasury an amount equal to what he would be required to pay civilian workers if they were available.

4TH 'DUD' ALARM

Firemen Called Out Again by Third, Mulberry Box.

Puzzlement and indignation of Central station firemen increased last night when a fourth false alarm to be received from the same box in six weeks rung in from West Third and North Mulberry streets.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger sought to apprehend a group of boys fleeing from the corner after all downtown rigs responded to an alarm several evenings ago. He and other department officials entertain also an opinion that the alarms are being turned in by a neighborhood resident suffering from a phobia to see fire apparatus in motion.

Fire officials assert such instances are on record in a number of cities.

Central firemen were called to the home of M. Phillips, 75 North Benton street, at 4 p. m., yesterday when back-firing threatened to set fire to an auto, Captain Paul Young reported.

Spellman Flies to Vatican To Deliver Message From President.

BARCELONA—(AP)—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York left Barcelona for Vatican City by air today.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Delivery of a report to Pope Pius XII on the American government's current views in respect to the world conflict today is understood to be the chief purpose of the visit to the Vatican of Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York.

In this connection, Archbishop Spellman is believed to be delivering to His Holiness a special message from President Roosevelt.

In outlining to the Pope the American government's position on world affairs, the archbishop is expected to touch not only on current developments in the war, such as the Russian victories and the progress of the American war effort, but on some of the major post war problems as well.

He also is expected to explain to His Holiness the purposes behind the Casablanca decision of President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill to accept nothing less than the unconditional surrender of Italy, Germany and Japan.

It is recalled that Archbishop Spellman conferred with President Roosevelt at the White House shortly before he left for the Vatican, via Portugal and Spain.

PRESS CALLED FREE BULWARK

Ohio Newspapermen Told to Forget Fears and Stand Against Bureaucracy.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—W. F. Wiley of the Cincinnati Enquirer told Ohio newspaper owners to throttle fear of wartime publication difficulties and "remember that you are the bulwark against bureaucracy in America."

Wiley addressed the annual convention of the Ohio Newspaper association which re-elected him chairman of its board of trustees yesterday.

"Many of you Ohio publishers are fearing the cut in zinc; fearing the cut in newsprint; fearing censorship; fearing the effect of the draft on your valuable manpower," Wiley said.

"Forget that fear," he urged, "and remember that you are the bulwark against bureaucracy in America, the last stand of state's rights in the nation."

"Never forget that yours is not only a constitutional authority but a 'right' of freedom of the press, handed down since these shores were made free."

"I urge you to give the people the information they crave these days. Don't fear censorship and the holdings of news for weeks after it happens, even though it doesn't please your 'news-loving heart.' Make your work your life and you will have fulfilled your task."

Ralph D. Henderson of the Columbus Citizen was re-elected president of the association.

Pre-War Lunch to Be Big Item on K. C. Navy Party

Pre-war lunch including such items as ham (in large quantities) and coffee will be served at the party the Knights of Columbus will stage tonight in their hall for the naval aviation cadets stationed at the Mansfield airport.

F. M. Bunsey, chairman of the committee in charge, said the lodge planned to go "all out" to guarantee a gala evening for the service men with Monte Carlo features, dancing and cards on the evening's bill. The "all out" angle, the committee agreed, especially will effect the treasury of the organization.

Assisting Bunsey is Paul Snyder, grand knight; Phil Renie and daughters; Isabelle representatives, Mrs. John Daley and Mrs. Ray Straub.

Only service men will be eligible to win prizes which will be provided for pinocchio, auction and contract bridge and "500", as well as door prizes and awards for Monte Carlo winners. Each cadet will be presented with $5,000 stage money when he enters the hall, the committee said. Prizes designed for use of the cadets have been purchased.

The lodge expects, by the party, to acquaint the cadets with accommodations of their hall which is open to service men at all times. It provides a billiard hall and other entertainment facilities not available at the USO.

GIVES BASIS OF 'FATHERS LAST' DRAFT MEASURE

House Panel Raps at M'Nutt In Bill Presented Today To Representatives.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Slapping directly at Manpower Chairman Paul V. McNutt, the house military affairs committee today laid before congress its justification for voting to place married men with children at the bottom of the draft list.

The committee, reporting on its 23-2 approval of the Kilday bill, held that the measure will "aid much in the prosecution of the war, and at the same time maintain and preserve the institution" of the American home, as well as alleviate to some extent the urgent and much needed demand for additional productive manpower on the home front.

It voiced confidence in the selective service administration but stated pointedly that "many local boards . . . due to confusion and difference of opinion in the construction of rules and regulations" had inducted large numbers of men with little regard to dependency.

The bill sponsored by Rep. Kilday (D., Tex.), provides that draft registrants be included in the order of single men, single men with collateral dependents, married men without children and, finally, married men with children.

The bill rules out inductions by occupational groups or "because of occupations"—a direct rap at McNutt's proposal to take men from non-essential jobs regardless of dependency status.

The bill's major change, the committee said, is that placing the order of draft induction on a state-wide rather than draft-board-area basis.

"The bill as presented does not, in any way, bar the induction of heads of families, but does provide that based on the degree of dependency, single men without dependents, and single men with collateral dependents, as well as married men without children, shall be inducted into the service under proper rules and regulations prior to the induction of heads of families with one or more dependents," the report said.

Chairman May (D., Ky.), of the committee said he would seek a rule for house consideration of the amending bill next week.

ILLNESS FATAL

Charles M. Walter, Retired Businessman, Succumbs.

Charles M. Walter, retired Mansfield businessman, died early today at his home, 376 Park avenue west, after an illness of several months. Mr. Walter was born in Waverly, Calif., and came to Mansfield with his parents when he was eight years old. He was a member of the former Fred Walter Sons company.

Mr. Walter was a member of St. Peter's Catholic church and the Elks lodge. He is survived by a wife, Fred, Mansfield; five sisters, Mrs. W. J. Suehrer, Detroit, Mrs. William Berno, Mrs. A. R. Pearl, Mrs. Fred Walter and Miss Caroline Walter of Mansfield, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Friends may call at the Walter home after 4 p. m. Sunday. Funeral services will be conducted at St. Peter's church at 10 a. m. Tuesday. Burial will be in Mansfield Catholic cemetery.

F. M. Bunsey, chairman of the committee in charge, said the lodge planned to go "all out" to guarantee a gala evening for the service men with Monte Carlo features, dancing and cards on the evening's bill. The "all out" angle, the committee agreed, especially will effect the treasury of the organization.

Assisting Bunsey is Paul Snyder, grand knight; Phil Renie and daughters; Isabelle representatives, Mrs. John Daley and Mrs. Ray Straub.

CANADA DRAFT 'FACES DEBATE'

Hotly Contested Law Again Up For Discussion.

OTTAWA—(AP)—Canada's hotly-contested conscription law, which was passed only after much wrangling, today again was due for parliamentary discussion and on the outcome hinged a "vote of confidence."

The ticklish issue, raised again by resigned Minister of Public Works Arthur Cardin, was met squarely by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King who, in an address to parliament, termed consideration of revocation of the conscription mobilization law a vote of no confidence.

"If we are going to have this session opened with an effort to divide this country again, to destroy the unity we now have, the sooner the government knows about it the better," King said. "I look to my honorable friends to show where they stand in support of me."

ngames Newspaper Hit ck at OWI 'Gag' on News

ited Press)

LES—Los Angeles fused today to pub-

ish news of local federal agencies because the regional Office of War Information has ordered such news channeled through its hands.

Editors described the orders as a "gag" on the press. Howard Langley, former publicity man and regional OWI director, said reporters had "activated" local news sources too thoroughly.

Editors scrapped plans for elaborate layouts on the new point rationing and carried brief comments on the new setup.

The Daily News advised readers seeking information to telephone Langley, concluding:

"The gag order just released will add to the confusion and will not succeed in covering up the blunders of Washington's local branch office."

The Times called the order a "Goebbelsian restriction." The Examiner labelled it a "dictatorial act of censorship."

Langley said the order was issued by the regional director, Dean Jennings, "to bring this office into conformity with the setup as it exists elsewhere."

An OWI spokesman at Wash- ington said the OWI is investigat- ing the situation in Los Angeles.

The spokesman said associates of Director Elmer Davis are in touch with the Los Angeles OWI office and are seeking a full ex- planation of the trouble.

due to be placed on fresh vegeta- bles within the next two or three months, according to an office of price administration announce- ment—thus leaving fresh fish the only important food group still unregulated on price.

Here's your timetable after to- day:

Tomorrow (Sunday): Count the cans of fruits and vegetables you own, excluding home-canned and small cans under 8 ounces. With this information, fill out a "con- sumer declaration" either clipped out of a newspaper or obtained from a ration board. This tells how many cans are owned in each family in excess of five cans per person in the family, how much coffee your family had in excess of one pound per person last Nov. 28 and lists the names of each member of the family.

Tuesday, Feb. 23 — starting Tuesday and running through the week, registration will be held in schoolhouses. One adult should appear for each family, bringing with him the "consumer declaration," and all the family's No. 1 ration books. Teachers and volunteer clerks will hand out one copy of ration book No. 2 for each No. 1 book exhibited (you keep the No. 1 book. The clerk only looks at it). On the basis of the "consumer declaration," the clerk also will tear out the fam- ily's No. 2 books one 8-point cou- pon for every can the family owns in excess of five per person.

Monday, March 1 — Sale of canned fruits and vegetables re- sumes, but only upon surrender of ration coupons, according to a "point value table."

dusty centers. In the Mansfield area many rural residents joined with city dwellers in urging re- tention of war time.

Local schools will resume class- es as usual Tuesday after the Washington birthday anniversary holiday. If you have any business with the liquor store (and the store has any liquor for business) set your visit back an hour. The same goes for the election board offices in the courthouse.

Latest cities to vote for reten- tion of fast time are Cincinnati, Toledo and Sandusky.

Farmers who urged the change to slow time concede now that a setback will be of little bene- fit since most metropolitan areas have decided to continue the war time. Buckeye rural residents had asserted that un- der "until the sun didn't rise" "until the middle of the forenoon" forcing them to work beyond their normal bedtime in order to "make hay while the sun shines."

Persons turning their clocks back tonight will enjoy an extra hour of sleep tomorrow morning and several township and village school boards are expected to vote today on what time will be fol- lowed. Plymouth schools will con- tinue on fast time while the On- tario school will return to slow time.

Admiral Chester N. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Pacific fleet, disclosed at Pearl Harbor today that the navy's Cor- sair fighting planes — among the fastest high altitude scrapper in the world—had gone into action in the Solomons theater.

The Corsairs were described as "in the 400 m.p.h. class," capable of outlying any other aircraft at 35,000 feet or above, and far su- perior to anything the Japanese have shown in the Pacific.

RAF Continues 'Softening' Burma

NEW DELHI —(INS)—RAF bombers smashed at Japanese air- bases and troop positions in Bur- ma in continuation of the "soft- ening up" program, an official communique reported today. Amer- ican Liberator bombers with British crews blasted the Japan- ese airbase in central Burma and caused heavy damage. Fires ravaged the field and adjacent dispersal areas after heavy bombs exploded in the target area.

BOY 'PROWLER'

Police Get Call, Find Youth Sleeping on Porch.

Police concluded early this morning they had captured a "prowler," who was routed from the J. Smith home, 151 Vale ave- nue, at 1:30 a. m.

Patrolmen John Grohol and Carl Beard, after investigating this report, were called at 4:30 a. m. to the home of Eva Dorn- er, 152 Vale avenue. Sound asleep on a rear porch was a 15-year-old boy who lives in the neighborhood. The lad was lec- tured and delivered to his home.

Police believe he first tried to find a "roost" at the Smith home.

Julius Weber, 92 West Fourth street, asked Beard and Grohol to "shoo" away from his porch a couple of men who said they merely sought a place to sit and quaff at 2 a. m.

John Schmid, 132 Wood street, notified police when a relative in his home thought a prowler was ransacking the dwelling. Patrol- men Don Mitchell and John Steel were unable to find evidence of wrongful entry.

Cooldige's Estimate of Religion.

Cooldige said: "I do not see any method of improving our social and economic relations except through the teachings of religion. In fact it is my belief that we have gone as far as we can in progress and reform until we have a more general acceptance of the truths of religion."

"If these are permitted to slip away from us the progress and reform which we have already accomplished will vanish with them."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1943.

We must all prepare to adopt for the duration a Spartan standard of living and take patriotic pride in it. There is no way of giving any one group of our people a substantial additional part of the nation's goods or income without hurting all the rest of us.—Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and remember to have your tires and battery checked.

Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek's recent talk may also serve to popularize use of the dictionary in this country.

Congress is finding the taxation problem difficult—possibly because neither Washington nor Lincoln made any reference to the Ruml plan.

Farmers Need Experienced Help

SECOND only to actual fighting, and attainment of maximum output of war materials, is the matter of ways and means by which American farm production can be increased this year and sold to consumers at prices that will not carry this country further on the road to disastrous inflation.

Various phases of this vitally important problem are being further complicated by congressional and departmental bickering, and immediate needs are apparently being lost sight of in attempting to formulate an idealistic set-up designed for peace-time rather than to meet the emergency of war.

Announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard that he will ask the army to furlough troops "if they are needed to help harvest the 1943 farm crops" provides an example of administrative failure to grasp the immensity of the problem, as it is now obvious that some of the men drawn into the army from farms will be needed to plant, cultivate and harvest 1943 crops if increased production is to be attained.

Also, if service men are to be furloughed for farm work, it should be as individuals rather than as "troops," for it is only those who have had experience on farms who would be helpful in doing the work that will be required.

As Granville Barrere, editor of the Hillsboro News-Herald, a weekly newspaper which serves a farming community, puts it: "Every person who knows about farming knows that the farm problem cannot be solved by putting city folks on farms. It not only takes experience to do farm work but it takes ability to handle machinery. Farmers have enough troubles and problems without being bothered and worried with city folks who know nothing about farming. . . . Leave farm boys on the farms and make it possible for farmers to secure the machinery and equipment to operate their farms."

The matter of allocating farm machinery and equipment is also being badly mishandled from Washington and a vast amount of needed equipment is now lying in factory warehouses, awaiting release by rationing agencies, because of lack of understanding of specific seasonal requirements of farmers in various states.

No wonder the farmers are puzzled, and that they don't know just what to do. The situation, as being handled and discussed in Washington, is decidedly puzzling.

Rationing By the Point System

WHEN the time comes next week to make application for Ration Book No. 2 it is quite likely, as in the past, that a large majority of those who apply will allow ample time for this requirement and will adopt a pleasant and courteous attitude toward the teachers and other volunteer workers who issue the ration books.

This is a service for which no payment is made and is accepted by teachers and the other workers as a part of their contribution to the war effort.

Details of the point system, which comes into vogue under provisions of the new ration book, will require some study and budgeting of rationed foods over the period specified, but a similar system already operative in England has proved effective in securing the desired result—equable distribution of limited supplies.

As the need for sending food to American fighting forces abroad, and supplying service men in training camps, as well as making large shipments to our Allies in the war, becomes better understood, there will probably be readier acceptance of rationing restrictions by civilians, and efforts to beat ration regulations by hoarding will likely become less common.

Honest conformity to rationing requirements will result in a fair and ample distribution of food and other essential commodities to everybody, as is intended. That will be the better way.

From Bicycles To Tanks

ACCORDING to an article in the Cumberland, Md., Times: "In the late 1890's, when the bicycle came into popularity, Col. Royal P. Davidson, then the young commandant of cadets at the Northwestern Military and Naval academy, at Lake Geneva, Wis., immediately saw the practicality of using this means of locomotion for the transportation of infantry."

First Col. Davidson mounted a corps of cadets on bicycles, proving the soundness of his theory. Then came the automobile. He put an automobile rifle on an automobile chassis and from this beginning went on until he had a completely armored car.

"English military men have been making experiments," says the Times, "and have succeeded in creating an auto tank. It was only a step from the automobile to the tank and this the British brought into being in time to turn the tide of the first World War. During his experiments Col. Davidson likewise built an automobile tank designed as a defense against the consumer of anti-aircraft guns. Both hospital and other military equipment based on the automobile were also designed by this man, who should be called a serious ordnance expert."

The recent death of Col. Davidson brings these early efforts to mind. It is interesting to see the stages by which one man's idea of putting a cadet on a bike developed into an eighty-ton tank, with turrets for heavy fire.

Japanese Retreat Forced

THE JAPANESE can be definitely pushed back. That was proved by the evacuation of Guadalcanal. They have spent a lot of men and money trying first to get it, and then to hold it. This expenditure shows that they wanted it badly, and would not give it up unless they absolutely had to.

Probably one of the potent factors has been constant wearing away of Japanese shipping.

BAD SPOT TO CHANGE DRIVERS

Third Party Trend Seen In South

By CHARLES P. STEWART

DEMOCRATIC management is none too happy over obviously increasing signs of a third party movement's development in the Deep South.

Dixie is largely disaffected with the New Deal and the New Dealers know and admit it. The discontented element could, of course, vote the Republican ticket but it does not want to do that. It considers Republicans as bad as New Dealers—not quite of the same sort but no improvement on the latter, in their own peculiar fashion.

It is said to be to set up an organization with the word "Democratic" in its designation, preceded by "Independent" or some such qualification.

In fact, one of its special objects is to emphasize the fact that it doesn't consider the New Deal Democratic. Indeed, it verges on preferring certain sorts of the G. O. P. affiliates to the New Dealers, though it does not propose actually to flip over to them.

That the "Independents" (to so designate them) expect to elect a pre-identical candidate is not considered likely.

They probably don't believe they can carry a single state presidentially, but they evidently surmise that they may win with a few congressmen. This color is exceedingly useful to them in the tally on continuation of the Dies investigation.

The administration was exceedingly anxious to have that inquiry choked off, because it was directed against federal appointees of its own selection. It lost, though, by a thumping representative majority.

It was as substantial, on a Washington scale as its last November's national defeat of congressional spokesmen.

The target the "Independents" are shooting at is a situation that will give them the balance of power. The New Dealers will not acquiesce in this, but they are hopeful of enough Republican grandeur to make the GOP manageable.

What's the matter with them? Well, too many brains. They clutter things. Heaven knows how true that is! As to questionnaires? Have you "rassled" with your income tax returns? You have to hire a lawyer to help you. Just an ordinary individual, on a couple or three thousands, has to have expert help.

The n—regimentation! The South is sick of it. Last November's elections results were indicative.

Now it is worse, with income tax returns to calculate. Those personal returns hit the average individual hardest. Big business can stand it, but the ordinary citizen gets pretty tired of it.

It he could say, "My pay is so much. What is the tax on it?" it would not be so bad. But when he comes to calculate his deductions, he must indulge in some pretty stiff arithmetic, and believe me, he needs to figure on them, too.

Well, our bureaus are responsible for it. The heck of it is that they do not know just what their various systems are.

Ask them, and they cannot tell you. Their questionnaires do not mean anything. This seems to make the Deep South hotter under the collar than our folk above the Mason-Dixon line. Maybe it is not creditable to the latter.

The parties are switching. Politicians recognize it. They may not classify finally into two things or other.

Perhaps the old party labels will stick, but they are gone technically already.

Listen World! By ELSIE ROBINSON

The Hardest Test

SHE'S SIXTEEN. A lovely youngster, determined, sensitive. You can feel the eager beat of her spirit already, like thrusting wings. And you can guess, with half a look, that she wants to be a writer.

"But what," she asks, "is the hardest thing about being a writer? I know, of course, that I must learn to do all the routine jobs—short-hand, typing—But what, really is the toughest test?"

I wonder how many hundreds of times I've heard that question. And there's still only one answer, whether you're planning to be a scientist or bombardier, engineer, doctor, lawyer or nurse. What's the basic, the toughest test if you want to make the grade in life?

JUST SITTING STILL, MY DEAR.

JUST SITTING STILL UNTIL BODY, MIND AND SPIRIT HAVE LEARNED TO CO-ORDINATE. . . . TO WORK AS ONE DISCIPLINED TOOL.

Just sitting still. That's a dull-sounding answer, isn't it? You're all full of enthusiasm and go-getters. You want to be up and doing. You hate to wait. You feel that such waiting is a waste. You rebel against it. Why can't those tiresome older people give you a chance . . . let you race ahead? Why must they hold you back . . . spoil your chances? It's all so cruel and unfair!

You're wrong, youngster. Sitting still is the basic must do for us all, whatever our talent.

I want you, it's dull. Stupid and hateful. But you'll never amount to a hill of beans until you've mastered the trick. And that doesn't merely apply to leading a career of making a happy marriage. It applies to every form of healthy, hearty human endeavor.

YOU'LL NEVER GET ANYWHERE OR DO ANYTHING UNTIL YOU'VE LEARNED HOW TO BE STILL UNTIL YOU CAN FORGET YOURSELF AND LISTEN.

Remember that old Sunday school text you learned as a little tyke: "Be still and know that I am God."—Old King David

"Be still and know that wisdom and strength do not come with a rush. They come as the spring comes over the hill—gently surrendering. They come—waiting and listening. They come answering in the silence of the night, in the hush of the dawn. Be still and know me when I come. There is no other way. Be still and let me in. That is the only way . . . for king or peasant. BE STILL AND KNOW THAT I AM GOD."

Americans In North Africa Get First Taste of Mechanized War

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE MUCH ROUTED Afrika Korps of Marshal Erwin Rommel was stretched out in a 200-mile column from Ben Gardane just inside the Tunisian east border, up around the bend toward Gabes. Rommel, himself, was variously reported as injured, ill and nearly captured, and the south Tunisian front was quiet.

Then one morning Rommel performed a military feat equivalent to a vaudeville pianist playing two melodies at the same time, one with each hand. While the rear of his column fought brisk delaying actions, holding the British Eighth army to a slow advance, the front end of Rommel's column went on the offensive.

Baptism. Battle-sharpened veterans who lived through the furious tank battles of Egypt and Libya rode out of Faid Pass in 62-ton monster Mark VI tanks. They smashed into Allied advance lines held by young Americans, many of them getting their first taste, outside of tank warfare schools, of mechanized warfare.

The youngsters stood by their guns but the surprise, the weight of armor and the (at least temporary) air superiority of Hitler's new Messerschmitt-109s and Focke-Wulf-190s was too much. Rommel's crack tankmen broke through 20 miles in their initial dash while a second column moving almost as quickly from Sened cut important Allied roads, left Americans at Gafsa in danger of encirclement. The communications center was abandoned to the Germans.

Comeback. When Allied air power spread its protective wings over the ground troops, the Yanks came back, wiped six miles off Rommel's breakthrough but lost ground again later in the week.

German broadcasts that followed claimed American losses, including wounded and captured "must be at least 8,000 or 10,000," but there was no immediate confirmation.

Allied military leaders paused to describe the action as no major engagement but an attempt by Rommel to gain time to bring the tail of his column into Tunisia to join General Von Arnim.

This diversion can not, it was pointed out, obscure the Allies' objective: To push the Axis out of Tunisia. It did point up the President's warning that the price of victory is casualties.

At Home

More Men Wanted

The draft question, batted around for more than a year, was beginning to clarify this week, and it came up like this: By the end of the year, close to 11½ million men will be in uniform; they are going into the services now at the rate of 12,000—a full division—a day, and will continue to do so; of the 14 to 15 million men between the ages of 18 and 38, all but about 2½ million will be inducted, the deferables being those engaged in farm work or other important war jobs.

Back of these figures was a thought-provoking fact: Invasions, whether in the Pacific or in Europe, will cost a lot of American lives, and there must be a constant stream of replacements to overwhelm the enemy when the time comes.

But congress, which has felt for a long time that there is too much selective service by administrative decree, not enough by legislation, refused to be whipped without a fight. Even while the WMC was expounding its plans, into the house hopped yet another bill which would establish uniform priority in all states, require the induction, in order of single men, single men with dependents, childless married men, married men with children.

Tempest In the WPB

Policy clashes between military and civilian experts are routine in Washington in wartime, but few have boiled for so long without a spark.

Dave Boone Says:

IT LOOKS like the War Production board might have to issue communiques and a daily list of its casualties. I heard Donald Nelson and all his vice presidents and deputies are working in helmets.

Ferdinand Eberstadt is the latest to suffer from a direct hit and it's getting so it's almost impossible for anybody to work in WPB without plenty of air protection.

The house naval affairs committee has started a move to have all cases of absenteeism from naval and private shipyards reported four times a year to local draft boards so that workers who lay off too often can be put into the armed services.

It's hard to believe that great numbers of men given draft deferment so they can help build badly needed ships don't show up regularly, but statistics show it's a fact. Anyhow, the naval affairs committee now wants the selective service boards to crack down on the "essential" workers who don't treat the jobs as "essential."

Joe DiMaggio has taken his physical test and will join the army as a buck private. There will be no holdout routine between Joe and Uncle Sam. Uncle Sam will offer the usual $50 a month and Joe will take it. Here's hoping Joe is not in any batting slump when he faces Nazi pitching.

By making it possible for air force workers to shoot straight across the river in speedy cruisers rather than take the long way around by land bridge routes, the ferry service is claimed to save 5,000 eight-hour working days, 10,000 gallons of gasoline, and 2,250,000 tire miles a year.

Abroad

Finland on Fence

Without a popular vote, the 24-year-old republic of Finland went through the motions of a presidential election—while a flight of Russian bombers subjected the capital, Helsinki, to bombardment for the first time in more than a year.

Members of the college of electors—chosen six years ago when there was an entirely different set of candidates—plumped almost solidly for the incumbent, 54-year-old Risto Ryti, former banker, lawyer and premier, and of recent months, to all appearances a firm friend of the Nazis.

While the election went smoothly, there was evidence of political skirmishing behind the scenes.

Guessing Game

The mystery of Adolf Hitler's temporary withdrawal from the international political scene grows.

From London came a report that for more than a fortnight—since the 10th anniversary observance of Hitler's accession to the chancellorship—all important German army orders had been signed, not by Hitler, but by the high command.

London deduced that Adolf had relinquished to his generals the privilege of making military decisions, or that his health had been impaired by the setbacks on the Russian front.

Discussing recent, widespread reports of the Fuehrer's death, Louis Lochner, former AP chief of bureau at Berlin and a shrewd analyst of German politics and psychology, guessed: Hitler either is ill mentally or physically, or he is in one of his "creative pauses" to determine his next military move.

Cheer In Russia

Russia marked up more important conquests this week: Rostov, Voroshilovgrad, Kharkov, the great Ukrainian steel center and capital, and others. Despite the rising tempo of the fighting, the Red Army surged on.

Without detracting from the fighting qualities of the Russians, observers sensed a change of strategy in the German operations. Where the Nazis, apparently on orders from Adolf Hitler, attempted to hold their lines too long and met disaster at Stalingrad, there had been some semblance of orderly withdrawal at Rostov, Voroshilovgrad and Kharkov.

Where an army of 300,000 was cut in pieces at Stalingrad, there had been no evidence of such staggering losses at Rostov and Kharkov.

In Short

Scheduled: The treasury's new Victory Loan drive, for April. The goal: $13,000,000,000.

Died: In Los Angeles, Miss Jean Durante, wife of the actor-comedian, after two years' illness.

Closed: Because of the oil shortage, one New York laundry serving 61,000 families.

Proposed: In congress, legislation providing for a year's compulsory military training for all youths, after the war.

Decreed: By California OPA, no supplemental gasoline rations for elopement to Arizona or Nevada. The suggestion: Stay home and brook shack.

Granted: To New York Yank's star Joe DiMaggio, his draft board's permission to enlist in the army, facing early induction after 1A classification. Brooklyn Dodgers' manager, Leo Durocher.

The service has been planned by Mrs. I. W. Basinger, Founders' day chairman, and will include organ selections by Miss Louise Krause, invocation by Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the church, and selections by the Mothersingers, under the direction of Mrs. Elsie Ireland, Mrs. Milo Hieber, past president of the Mansfield council, will pay tribute to founders of the Mansfield associations.

W. L. Miller, superintendent of the public schools, will speak on "Our Schools," and the sermon of the evening will be delivered by Rev. Glenn F. Lewis, pastor of Grace Episcopal church. Principals of the Mansfield public schools will serve as ushers during the evening, under the chairmanship of E. W. Kissell. The services are open to the public.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Feb. 21.
Sunday's horoscope holds testimony of some very active and interesting occurrences, which may have practical and constructive objectives, albeit the vocations and avocations of the Sabbath will not be neglected. There may also be social gaiety and pleasure, although the mind may be keyed to a serious bent.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an enterprising year. It is advised that much vigilance be devoted to signing all documents, papers, and verbal agreement as well, as tricky contracts are noted. A child born on this day should have much enterprise and mental ability for accomplishing practical objectives, with large interests assisting. It may, however, be subject to deceit, fraud or misconception.

For Monday, Feb. 22.
Monday's astrological forecast holds augury of an opportunity to place the fortunes and ambitions on a firm, enduring and permanent basis. The mind will be keen, acute and clever as well as dependable, stable and profound. Any proclivity toward lavish expenditure might offset the fortunate auguries. Be careful lest there be personal estrangements.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which there will be a very propitious opening for establishing the affairs and the fortunes on lasting and solid foundation. A child born on this day may have excellent mentality and versatility, with a studious, sound and serious slant, assuring its permanent good fortune if erratic and extravagant conduct be eschewed.

THEATERS

Opens Tonight.
"Hitler's Children," the sensational film based on Gregor Ziemer's best selling book, "Education For Death," opens tonight at the Ohio theater. The story deals with an American schoolmaster, Kent Smith, his young assistant, Bonita Granville, and an active member of the Hitler youth movement, Tim Holt. Miss Granville is sent to a German labor camp because of her German parentage. Smith tries to find her and get her out of the country, but his efforts are thwarted when he meets Holt, Gestapo member. Holt and Miss Granville are secretly in love, but Holt tries to hide his feelings for her because of his loyalty to the state.

'King Kong' Continues.
The horror thriller, "King Kong," starring Fay Wray, Robert Armstrong, and Bruce Cabot, is the current attraction at the Park. It is the story of a weird, fantastic monster's actions, "Gunga-Din," with Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen, and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. is the other attraction.

PRE-NUPTIAL PARTY HONORS MISS PERL

Popular Bride-Elect Feted By Mrs. John Massa, Mrs. Clyde Kessel and Mrs. Andrew Tomb, Friday Evening; Other Parties Planned.

THE HOME of Mrs. John E. Massa, 438 Marion avenue, was the scene of a delightful party Thursday evening when Miss Hortense Perl, popular bride-elect, was feted by Mrs. Massa, Mrs. Clyde Kessel and Mrs. Andrew Tomb.

Bridge was played at four tables during the evening, with Mrs. W. F. Feigenbaum, Mrs. Clem Wehinger and Mrs. John Newcomer receiving the awards for high scores.

At a late hour the 21 guests were invited to the dining room where a luncheon was served at a long table decorated in pink and white. The centerpiece included tall lighted tapers, surrounded by greenery, and a miniature bride and bridegroom.

By searching for miniature sections of a cardboard dog, Miss Perl located gifts from each of the guests, and the hostesses also gave the honoree a lovely gift.

The next in the series of parties for Miss Perl will be on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. J. J. Kindel, Davis road, assisted by Mrs. Ernest Geiger, Mrs. Andrew Stash, and Mrs. William Rathbun, while on Friday night Miss Perl will be feted at the home of Mrs. Charles H. Whisler, 235 South Mulberry street.

Miss Perl will become the bride of Joseph C. Drilling of Shelby in a ceremony on March 6, in St. Peter's Catholic church.

STUDY CLUB HAS MEETING.

The Joan of Arc Study club met at the home of Mrs. Verba Kanary, 126 Rae avenue. Mrs. Elizabeth Wehinger, Berger avenue, gave the paper entitled, "Comics and Their Creators." Roll call was answered by current events. The March 18 meeting will be with Mrs. Wehinger.

BIBLE CLUB.

Mrs. R. E. Race opened her home, Wednesday afternoon to 14 members of the Ruth and Naomi Bible club. Mrs. E. B. Colby had charge of devotions. Mrs. W. C. To a veteran congressman the good old days were those in which all the constituents wanted was a fresh pack of seeds.

One of the softest jobs these days, it appears, is that of being a Nazi war correspondent attached to a German pocket battleship.

SMALL PLUS SIGNS MARK STOCK TRADE

Exchange Reports 133 Issues Pay Dividends Without Break For 25 Years.

NEW YORK—Small plus signs had a shade the best of it in today's early stock market transactions.

Up fractions at a quiet opening were American Telephone, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, American Can & Foundry and Sperry. Declines were posted for U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, Continental Can and Radio Corp.

Boardrooms found some cheer in the New York stock exchange compilation revealing 133 of 834 listed common stock issues had paid dividends without a break for 25 years or more, 109 for 30 years or more, 71 for 40 years or more, 36 for 50 years or more, 25 for 60 years or more and 17 for at least 70 years.
